

Kuelap and beyond the Chachapoyas Day by day description

Day 1 CHICLAYO

Arrival in Chiclayo, in the morning. We have the day to visit sites of pre-inca desert cultures, the museums of the two lineages of Sican and Sipan, with their tombs and treasures. Overnight at a hotel, built in the local style located in the outskirts, lunch and dinner included.

Day 2 CHICLAYO / CHACHAPOYAS

Heading north on the Panamerican Highway we take the detour over the Olmos desert as arid hills overgrown with shrubby vegetation take us over a low pass at 2000m to descend into arid sub-tropical northern Amazon basin at Bagua – we turn off into a cloud forest valley at Pedro Ruiz, and head uphill following the Utcubamba river until reaching Chachapoyas village, built on a commanding view of the valley- overnight at a clean and basic hotel.

Day 3 CHACHAPOYAS / CARAJILLA

Morning free to walk around the town for last minute shopping. In the afternoon we will visit the sarcophagi of Carajilla. Up the opposite hillside on an ever narrowing- dirt road we reach the trailhead of a short walk to the base of a calcareous rock formation. On an overhanging ledge we will see a set of sarcophagi made of mud effigies which contained ancestral tombs- an amazing sensation. Return to Chachapoyas, dinner on your own and overnight.

Day 4 CHACHAPOYAS / KUELAP / LEYMEBAMBA

We drive to the valley floor, cross over the river to begin our ascent to Kuelap on a winding uphill dirt road. Arrival below Kuelap, beautifully located on rock cliffs with roundhouse rock constructions encrusted with anthropomorphic rock – figures of deities of the past. A mysterious settlement, like many were, built on the edge of the cloud-forest, looking into this tropical paradise. In the afternoon, after a picnic lunch on the way we head upriver as we watch the Utcubamba cascading past us until reaching Leymebamba where we stay at a basic hotel.

Day 5 LEYMEBAMBA / TAJOPAMPA

Visiting the recently inaugurated museum of various sites in the overhanging side valleys we then start our trek. Our uphill walk of the morning will bring us to Zic-Zic. at 2,690masl (about 8,800ft) as we make our way through a twisted cloud – forest overhung by bromeliads and orchid. In the course of the day will criss cross the stream until reaching Tajopampa, our campsite, in the afternoon. From here we can see the walls of our valley above us where the burial sites of la Petaca and Diablo Wasi are located.

Day 6 TAJOPAMPA AND BEYOND

We stay at the same place but in the morning we will visit another unique Chachapoya settlement, La Joya – covered in cloud forest still ready to be explored. We return to camp for lunch and in the afternoon we can explore the burial site of Diablo Wasi with its painted walls. Return to camp.

Day 7 TAJOPAMPA / ULCOCOCHA

Even though not a long day, we head over a pass at 3,910masl (about 13,000ft) as we walk through a grassy paramo with outstanding views of the Utcubamba Valley – a peaceful setting that accompanied by the windy silence sweeps you into a state of inner peace. We head over the Opavan Pass to slowly put up our camp at 3,600m (12,000ft) at Ulcococho lake from where you can see the Marañon river in the horizon, a tributary of the Amazon.

Day 8 ULCOCOCHA / CACHABAMBA

A short last walk across the grassy highland savannah will bring us to the edge of the cloud – forest. We begin our slow descent and a carpeted lush valley in different hues of green, opens below with its patchwork mosaic of fields. We arrive close to Cochabamba, the largest Inca settlement which was an administrative center after the Incas conquered Chachapoyas, camp in the vicinity.

Day 9 COCHABAMBA / BALSAS

We now head downhill into more arid country, we will even come across cacti at the end of the trail, where a vehicle will pick us up to head to Balsas, from where we will take another vehicle to Cajamarca. Lunch included, overnight at hotel.
